MILITIA UNIT MEETING TONIGHT

Opportunities Afforded By Enlistment In Company Will Be Explained

A week of intensive preliminary work looking toward organization of "El Dorado County's Own" unit in the California National Guard reaches a climax tonight at a meeting at the War Veterans' Memorial Building which, it is hoped, all men interested in enlisting in the unit will attend.

Motion pictures showing the type of work which the new unit will undertake, and demonstrating the need for special qualification of the personnel, will be shown, and the opportunities offered men who enlist in the company will be explained by National Guard officers.

The meeting is called for 7:30 o'clock.

Preparations for the community mass meeting have been developed during the week by a civic committee of which Paul R. Smith, commander of the American Legion and chairman of the advisory draft board, is chairman.

The committee was formed early this week following announcement by the Adjutant General at Sacramento on Friday of last week, authorizing organization of a National Guard company in Placerville.

The company will be Company D of the 115th Combat Engineers, Second Regiment, Fortieth (Sunshine) Division. It is to be commanded by three commissioned officers who will be graduate engineers, and will seek to enroll men especially qualified as tractor operators, mechanics, carpenters, electricians, powder men, and men of similar qualifications.

Change Noted In Selectee List

One More Man Added As One Is Deferred 6-Months On Showing Of Dependency

FORT ORD, (UP)—Headquarters of the Seventh Division of the U. S. Army to Fort Ord in the Jan. 20-Feb. 3 conscription period would be detailed to three infantry regiments of the division to bring them close to war-time strength.

The men will be received at Presidio of Monterey and will be given a 48-hour processing period before being sent to their regiments.

A change in the call issued for draftees to report January 22, issued earlier in the week, was announced Friday morning at the headquarters of the Selective Service Board.

The board announced that upon a further showing of dependency, Mancel V. Odlin, number one on the list, has been granted deferment for six months.

The effect of this ruling advances William Seymour from the replacement list to the primary list and adds the name of John E. Palmer to the bottom of the replacement list.

Board attaches also noted that the order for induction will be issued early next week and that following receipt of the induction order, the selectee will not be eligible to volunteer his services. If branch of the military or naval service before that time, he is at liberty to do so, but he may not volunteer after he has received his selective service induction order.

Attention also was directed to the recent bulletin from the Adjutant General's office, suggesting to employers that the jobs of men called for induction should not be filled for about ten days after the men report since it is possible that a man may be turned back at the induction station and could then return to his work.

Churches Unite In Evangelism

Three-Month Activities Program Is Undertaken In Local Presbytery

Presbyterian Churches of the Presbytery of Sacramento are united in an evangelism program to continue through January, February and March, under the direction of Dr. Albert Kircher, minister of the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Sacramento. The co-operating churches in the Sacramento Presbytery include Presbyterian church, Placerville, Rev. John W. Dunlop, minister, and El Dorado County Federated Church of Placerville, Rev. Harold G. Morehouse, minister.

Most of the churches of Sacramento Presbytery observed the Lord's Supper on the first Sunday of January, as the goals for the campaign of evangelism were presented to the members. Sunday, January 12th, will be observed as "Kingdom Extension Day." In many of the churches a social visitation will be conducted. Presbyterian Women's Day will be observed January 19th and Presbyterian Youth Day January 26th. Special designations for each Sunday have been made through Easter Sunday, at which time a report of new members received in all the churches of the Presbytery will be made.

The purpose of the program is described as the mobilization of a large number of workers in each church to contribute their time and talent to the growth and progress of the Kingdom.

A 10 per cent gain in membership upon profession of faith and a 10 per cent by letter of transfer are the goals set for the Presbytery, which includes thirty and 5365 members. The program also includes the recognition of both National and Foreign Mission projects and the stimulating of the Sunday School program for the Presbytery which shows a present enrollment of 4940 pupils.

Cooperating with the local committee on evangelism is Dr. William F. Klein, Director of the Unit of Evangelism of the Presbyterian Church, New York City, through whom the program is linked with a similar emphasis in other parts of the United States.

Miss Harriett Cory, who has been working "relief" at Placerville Telephone Exchange has returned to her home in Auburn for the week-end. She expects to return here on Monday.

Lumber for the signs was given by the California Door Company and the signs were painted by the high school art classes. When our camera refused to function, Chief of Police Ralph W. Jones came to the rescue and called Officer Glynn Payne, with the city's photographic equipment, to snap the picture.

COUGARS OPEN HOOP CAMPAIGN AGAINST IONE TONIGHT

League Season Starts In Ione Gymnasium With First Game Scheduled At 6:30 O'Clock; Brown Hopeful; Rooters Plan Support For Teams

The three Cougar basketball quintets open their regular Mother Lode League schedule tonight against the Ione high school at Ione, with the first game scheduled at 6:30 o'clock.

The B game will start approximately an hour later and the A team is expected to go on at about 8:30 o'clock.

While the Cougar players will make the trip in school buses, a large delegation of rooters is expected to go to Ione in private cars to support the Cougars in their bid for a share of the league honors.

Coach L. A. Brown said Friday morning that he is hoping that the Cougars will meet with a measure of success against Ione, although the squad has had trouble rounding into shape.

"Some of the boys have been laid up with influenza and we have not had the practice that we might have had if all had been in good health," the mentor declared.

"However, we'll be in there and we'll give them the best we have as we always do, and after it's over, we'll look at the score board."

Mr. Strum said he has no information on the subject other than the announcement that the survey will be undertaken.

"TOTAL DEFENSE" BILL GRANTS BRITISH WARSHIPS USE OF AMERICAN PORTS

Measure, Embodying President's Lending Plan, Offered Simultaneously In Senate And House; Roosevelt Urges Utmost Speed

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The administration's historic measure for converting the United States into an "arsenal for democracy" was placed before congress today with a surprise provision that would permit the repair and outfitting of British warships in American ports.

The bill, embodying President Roosevelt's plan of lending American-made munitions to Britain, Greece and China, including supplies now in the possession of U. S. armed forces, was placed today before the senate and house simultaneously by democratic leaders Alben W. Barkley and John W. McCormack.

The measure contained five essential points and was probably drawn to permit extension of American aid to any government "whose defense the President considers to be vital to the defense of the United States."

The bill contained no funds, but is sweeping enabling legislation. Mr. Roosevelt said he would ask for appropriation after the present legislation has been approved. He stressed at a press conference that congress should act with the utmost speed.

Giving the President virtually unlimited power, the measure provided:

1. The sale, leasing, lending or other disposition of any war materials to "any country whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States," including both new material and equipment now on hand.

2. Authority to test, repair, outfit or otherwise place in good working order any defense article of a friendly belligerent. For example, it would be possible for ships of the British fleet to be repaired in the Brooklyn navy yard if the President considered it in the interest of our national defense to do so.

3. The manufacture of war materials for friendly foreign governments in both government-owned and privately-owned arsenals, factories and shipyards.

4. The communication to any friendly government of any information pertaining to any defense article actually furnished to that government, including designs, blueprints, and information for the using the equipment.

5. The release of any defense article for export, eliminating restrictions in the espionage act of 1917 and in the embargo of July 2, 1940.

Committee members, hoping to make the bill effective by July 1, included urgency clauses in the measure which may make it a special order of business in the senate on Jan. 20. The state relief administration would be dissolved through curtailing appropriations.

The committee was prepared also to introduce a resolution calling for re-creation of the relief fact-finding committee of nine assembly and eight senate members.

Mrs. Daley said a separate bill would be drafted to deal with mobilization of employment, an important part of the committee's plan for drastic revision of relief administration.

Kin of Placerville Men Passes At Roseville

Funeral services were held from the Broer mortuary chapel at Roseville Thursday morning for John Henry Losser, 89, grandfather of Dean and Don Robinson, of Placerville, who died Tuesday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. William Taylor.

Mr. Losser was the father of Mrs. Viola Robinson, of Oroville, and is survived by four other daughters in addition to the two named. Native of Switzerland, he lived for many years at Gridley and had lived the past fourteen years at Roseville.

Gentlemen: I have just been reading in tonight's Republican very interesting report of the Grand Jury. As a taxpayer I was quite cheered to note that the members of the Jury were impressed with the manner in which the supervisors and county officials were endeavoring to keep down the tax rate. Four paragraphs in a row are devoted to this laudable subject.

Imagine my surprise to find some fourteen paragraphs along in the report a recommendation that the supervisors' salaries be increased $50.00 a month and the auditor's salary be increased from $900 per annum to $18,000.00 per annum. That last is a mighty healthy boost to my way of thinking, and I've resolved to join the El Dorado County Taxpayers Association or else start studying to become an auditor.

Dejectedly yours,

It'll soon be time to start issuing and accepting challenges with clubs from Jackson, Roseville, Lincoln, Sonoma and Grass Valley or any others who are golf minded. Unless I miss my guess, a flock of the locals are going to be nailed to the cross for a good "drubbing" unless they start loosening up pretty soon.

Lake Hearn now has almost as many balls as are in Ronard Cook's buckets at the clubhouse. And Ronard's, at least a few days ago, were just about as wet. A blasting breeze blew the roof off and plastered the place pitifully. But Cookie's got'er patched.

Soon now, Cook will probably be spending two or three days a week moving the grass on the course. It is, indeed, beautiful now, and with a few more nice days should be in the pink of condition — the lake and all.

Services, 11 a. m. Sunday School 9:30 a. m. Wednesday evening. Testimonial Meeting 8 p. m.
The reading room at the church building is open Tuesday and Friday from 2 o'clock until 4 o'clock.

"The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all." These words from II Corinthians comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, January 12, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Sacrament." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened. For even Christ our passover is sacrificed for us: Therefore let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth" (I Cor 5: 7, 8).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "Christianity as Jesus taught it was not a creed, nor a system of ceremonies, nor a special gift from a ritualistic Jehovah; but it was the demonstration of divine Love casting out error and healing the sick, not merely in the name of Christ, or Truth, but in demonstration of Truth, as must be the case in the cycles of divine light" (p. 135).

Christ's Valuation of Personality

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 12 is Luke 14:1-14, the Golden Text being Matt. 6:25, "Is not the life more than the food, and the body more than the raiment?")

JESUS WAS invited to the home of one of the Pharisees. Other Pharisees and lawyers were there, too, and these, St. Luke tells us, "watched Him." This was in January, A. D. 30. It was the Sabbath day. Whether the man who invited the Lord to eat with him and his friends on the Sabbath was one of those who were anxious to catch Him in some remark or act by which they could arrest Him, we are not told. It may well have been that this particular man really was friendly to Christ, but his friends were not.

"And behold, there was before Him a certain man that had the dropsy." You remember, in our last lesson the ruler of the synagogue had been angry when Jesus healed a lame woman on the Sabbath. Jesus, therefore, turned to the men about Him and asked: "Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath or not?"

In reading the Scriptures about our Lord's life on earth, you will notice that no man had quite such a keen intellect as He. They never "got ahead of Him," as we say. His questions and answers frequently amazed them and they had no answers ready. It was so in this case. They simply didn't know what to say, and whatever they did say they knew would embarrass them.

No Answer Forthcoming
No answer to His question being forthcoming, Jesus healed the man then and there and sent him away happy. Then He turned again to His companions and said: "Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the Sabbath day?"

By some commentators it is thought that the word "ass" should read "son" in the translation. Each man present knew that if it was his son or domestic animal that had fallen into a pit on the Sabbath he would have hastened to get him out. So once again they had nothing to say, as the implication was very obvious that if they would do so for their own child, or even for an animal, Sabbath or no Sabbath, it was right that a human being who was suffering should have his sickness cured.

Who Should Be Bidden?
Jesus then told those present what was His idea of the type of guest who should be bidden to a feast.

"When thou makest a dinner or supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, nor thy kinsmen, nor rich neighbors; lest haply they also bid thee again, and a recompense be made thee."

"But when thou makest a feast, bid the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind."

"And thou shalt be blessed; because they have not wherewith to recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed in the resurrection of the just."

This does not mean that we never should invite our relatives and friends to our homes. But that we should not ask people to our homes merely for the sake of carrying favor with them, and so that they will ask us. And if we ask those who have little or nothing, and make them welcome to our plenty, we will be rewarded in spiritual realm.

These poor people would have no way of recompensing their hosts for their hospitality, so there would be only spiritual satisfaction in entertaining them. Any of you who do this type of entertaining, know what a satisfaction it gives you. It may, also, lead to some of the finest friendships in the world, when unfortunately but thoroughly worthy persons are the bidden guests.

"Is not the life more than the food, and the body than the raiment?"

"MURDER WILL NOT OUT" by WHITMAN CHAMBERS

SYNOPSIS

Beautiful, exotic Chiquita, entertainer at Fuenta Fria Casino, in Mexico, is anxious to locate Johnnie De Voe, the publicity director. Returning from his empty cottage on the grounds, she is accosted by a man who knocks her unconscious and then holds her head in a fish pond until she drowns. The murderer then casually joins a male companion at the Casino. Later that night, Johnnie returns from a business trip. He learns from his assistant, "Red" Munson, that Leland Ramage, son of a wealthy Boston family (just returned from Tibet) and Mogo Finelli, the gangster (just released from Alcatraz) are guests at the Casino, having arrived almost simultaneously that afternoon. Putting two and two together, Johnnie believes Finelli followed Ramage to kidnap him. Johnnie is surprised when "Red" tells him the usually reserved Ramage had asked to meet Chiquita. The singer really is Helen Gates, a New England society girl who, after a brilliant marriage, was involved in a scandalous divorce. After that, she sang in night clubs and became acquainted with racketeers and crooked politicians. Under the name, "Chiquita," she was trying to come back at Fuenta Fria. "Red" is in love with her. Joe Soares, Chief of Police, informs Johnnie of Chiquita's death. To avoid unfavorable publicity, the murder is listed as "accidental drowning," but Johnnie vows to get the killer. His first step is to question Finelli. Outside of denying that he knew Chiquita was Helen Gates, Finelli will not talk. Alone with Finelli, Jake Luff, the gangster's henchman, says "Mogo, it was a dumb idea. I told you you couldn't get away with it." "Shut up!" Finelli snaps, "or you'll get what the dame got!" Johnnie's theory is that Finelli thought Chiquita recognized him and killed her to prevent her from tipping Ramage off and spilling the kidnapping scheme. When Johnnie informs Ramage of Finelli's presence, the millionaire threatens to leave unless the gangster does.

CHAPTER FIVE

JOHNNIE squirmed. What a blow to Fuenta Fria's reputation if Leland Ramage pulled out because he didn't care to expose his very valuable person to the menace of the world's most famous gangster!

"You see," the young millionaire explained smugly, "I have a bit of a phobia against being kidnaped. I've had it all my life. It's been hammered into me ever since my brother—you may remember that, Mr. De Voe. About 20 years ago my older brother was kidnaped. My father paid a hundred thousand dollar ransom. But—my brother's body was found two weeks later, floating in the bay."

"I understand all that, Mr. Ramage. I know how you must feel. I know why you dodge publicity and try to keep out of the public eye. But I want to assure you that you're as safe as you'd be any place in the world. Our police force is well organized and capable. From now on, as long as you're here, two or more of our men will have you under constant surveillance. And they will also have Mogo Finelli and his partner under surveillance. I tell you, Mr. Ramage, nothing can happen to you."

"But why, Mr. De Voe, do you not tell Mogo Finelli to leave? Wouldn't that solve the difficulty? And after all, isn't my patronage and good-will preferable to that of this notorious gangster?"

"Yeah," said Harry, "why don't you give Mogo the bum's rush?"

There was a sudden steely gleam in Johnnie's gray eyes. "Because," he clipped, "Mogo Finelli killed that little girl tonight! And Mogo Finelli is not going to leave here until I can hang it on him. That's final, gentlemen. I regret your leaving, if you feel you have to go. I regret exceedingly the bad name this episode will give our resort. But I'll be hanged if Mogo Finelli leaves here until he goes to the gallows in handcuffs to be arraigned for murder!"

The big pilot grinned and looked at his boss. That young man smiled aloofly, saying:

"You are all right, De Voe. Harry and I will stay. And I hope you land your quarry. Miss Chiquita, if that was really her name, was a most charming young lady." Johnnie De Voe coolly nodded and put an end to the interview.

The arrogant multi-millionaire and his bodyguard went back to the No. 1 wheel. Red Munson looked at Johnnie and mimicked:
"Think of the notoriety! Heavens!" The cocky little red-head choked. "And telling us Chiquita was a most charming young lady. Telling us! I almost slammed the big lollypop on the jaw."

Johnnie De Voe smiled half-heartedly. "I'm afraid, Red, you'll never make a public relations counsel until you learn to control your emotions in public."

"And if I have to tow-tow to snobs like Leland Ramage, I don't know as I want to be a public relations counsel. And what do you think of that?" Red retorted.

"All of which gets us nowhere," Johnnie brushed back his mop of hair, swabbed a handkerchief over his sweating face. "Look, Red. I'm dead on my feet. I don't see any thing more to do tonight and I'm going to have a glass of milk and turn in. You might keep your eye on things here in the Casino for a while and then turn in yourself. Only don't—please don't—insult any of our guests."

"I won't insult anybody," Red growled. "If I do anything, I'll kill that rat Finelli—and bust Ramage in the mug—and then go back to the hotel beat for the San Diego Sun."

"All of which might not," said Johnnie, with a tired smile, "be a bad idea."

Five o'clock that morning.
In the hotel corridor outside suite 1 two clean-cut, well-dressed young Mexicans squat on their haunches, their backs against the wall. They are smoking brown paper cigarettes and talking in low musical tones. The gist of their talk, translated into American vernacular, is:
"I'd like to see any smatch artist get him out of here past us. Huh, 'Red'?"
"You said it, Pancho."

And over on the other side of the Casino, concealed in the shrubbery across the road from bungalow A-18, are two more clean-cut, well-dressed young Mexicans. These two also are smoking brown paper cigarettes and talking in low tones. And the gist of their talk, translated, is:
"I'd like to see the foul rat make a break from that bungalow. Would we let him have it, or would we? How about it, Frederico?"
"You said it, Ramon."

Meanwhile the subjects of these two conversations, the richest young man and the most notorious gangster in the world, are, so far as is known, sleeping peacefully.

Five o'clock in the morning.
A small man in a white uniform, a man who looks like an ex-jockey, walks calmly through the front door of the Casino. He is carrying a suitcase. Turning down the corridor to the right, he pushes through the swinging doors and emerges into the gaming room.

He sets down the suitcase he carries and calmly looks over the big room. Two hours before it had been brilliant with light, thronged with people, gay with the loud laughter of the losers and the more subdued merriment of the winners.

Now the lights are dull. The tables are shrouded in gray covers. The long bar is deserted. Behind the gold grill of the cashier's office the huge gray safe sits sullen and formidable. The finest safe cracker in the world would fall miserably if he tried to open it before noon.

The little man in white, who looks like he might be an ex-jockey, surveys the scene with calm, ice-blue eyes. Surveys, particularly, the two languid men, also in white uniforms, who are pushing brooms over the floor. The little man beside the suitcase says sharply, in poor Spanish:
"You two men! Come here! Boss' orders."

The two men look up, lean a moment on their brooms, glance at each other. Then first one and then the other slowly lays aside his broom and slouches toward the little man beside the suitcase.

The latter has stiffened perceptibly, and his eyes have narrowed and grown colder. His right hand is in his pocket. He waits until the two sweepers, now side by side, are only a pace away.

Then with a speed too fast to follow with the eye, he whips out a long, wide-bladed knife. He swings it right—left. Right—left. He knows what he wants to do, this little man in white. And he has the strength in his arm and wrist to do it.

The two Mexicans stagger, at first too drugged with ennui, then too surprised, finally too gravely wounded to make an outcry. They clutch each other, sag, slump to the floor. One is almost decapitated. The other struggles feebly for a moment to regain his feet. Then he rolls slowly onto his back and lays still.

Within a matter of seconds the two men are motionless, their staring eyes glazing in death.

The little man, puffing now, bends swiftly and closes the fingers of a limp hand about the haft of his knife. Whipping out a second knife, he hurriedly bloodies it, grabs another hand and closes the fingers around the haft.

Then he stands back, looking over his handiwork: two Mexicans who have slashed each other to death. Suddenly a chill sweeps over him and for a long minute he stands there shaking. Then he gets hold of himself, picks up his suitcase, and with a last look at the two dead men mutters:
"They were nobodies anyway."

Johnnie De Voe awakened from a troubled sleep to find Joe Soares standing by his bed and calling his name. He sat up abruptly, rubbed the sleep out of his eyes, demanded:
"What's happened, Joe?"

The chief's round face was drawn. He needed a shave. He looked dead for sleep.

"Two of the boys on the janitor's squad. Sweepers in the Casino. Fought it out with knives in the gaming room sometime early this morning. We just found them drowned in their own blood. I thought you might like to look them over before we clean up."

Johnnie blinked. "Why should I want to see them, Joe?"

The chief scratched his head, tugged at his chin, blurted finally, "Mr. De Voe, those two boys were brothers. I've known them since they were knee high. Neither one of them was ever in trouble. Neither one ever packed a knife. I should have said it looks like they fought it out. Only I know they didn't. Not those two boys."

Johnnie rolled out of bed. "Call Munson as you go out, Joe. I'll be right with you."

Four minutes later Johnnie and Red pushed through the little circle of men in the gaming room and stood surveying the two blood-drenched bodies.

"Slashed," Johnnie said finally. "Not stabbed. Slashed."

Munson, pale around the gills, remarked, "Whoever did that could sure carve."

"Um," Johnnie said. "Whoever did that has a powerful wrist. What class of men have powerful wrists, Red?"

"Jockeys."

"Right. Jockeys," De Voe nodded, added bitterly, "And I suppose there aren't more than forty jockeys in the current meeting. Forty jockeys. Suffering cats. Joe Soares, we've got a job cut out for us."

Back again in the three-room bungalow that served them as office and sleeping quarters, Johnnie and Red bathed and shaved and got ready for the day.

"You think there's a connection?" Munson asked as he slicked back his bright red hair.

"Between the killing of Chiquita and those two men? Yes. There's no other conclusion. In the five years I've been here we've never had a murder. Now, within six or seven hours, three people die mysteriously. A connection? Certainly. You can't, Red, blame everything on coincidence."

FORESTERS RETURN FROM WEEK AT SKI SCHOOL AT GALENA CREEK

Five members of Eldorado Forest staff resumed their stations on Friday morning after spending the fore part of the week at Galena Creek, Nevada, attending a school of ski instruction under Forest Service auspices.

The five are Associate Forester Bert Parsons, Ranger M. D. Morris, and Robert Cronn, Lee Hill and Eugene Kincaid.

Parsons reports that the school was devoted to "instruction in how to get around under varying conditions," and that such items as sliding down-hill and keeping one's balance, or jumping, were in the background.

The sixty or more foresters in attendance were grouped into four classes, according to their experience on skis, for the week of intensive training. Robert Cronn, assistant ranger on the Georgetown district, was credited with making the greatest advancement of any man in attendance at the school.

IRISH CAPTAIN

By Jack Sords

Today's Sport Parade

By Henry McLenore
United Press Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES (UP)—A report has reached here that the winner of tonight's fight between Lou Nova and Patrick Edward Comiskey is likely to be tapped by Promoter Mike Jacobs as a late summer challenger for Joe Louis' heavyweight title.

If true, this report is very alarming. Not in itself, but in its implications. If either of these men is worthy to fight Louis, then what is to stop Promoter Jacobs from selecting me or you or any other fairly healthy man to do battle with the thunder-fisted swinger from Detroit? Nothing that I can see, because when a Nova or a Comiskey is mentioned that means the gates are down and no man is safe.

I don't say this to be mean to Nova or Comiskey, but only because I happened to see them in their last major fights and am convinced they wouldn't stand any more chance against Louis than any man selected at random from a phone book. Comiskey, a big, gangling article with a face that could get by in any Atlas as a relief map of Ireland, didn't last three minutes in a fight with Maxie Baer last year, and I don't have to tell you that a fellow who can't do better than that is not ever going to be a ring immortal. Comiskey is clumsier than a bear on stilts, and while he is a mighty puncher he is severely handicapped by an inability to hit any object that has as much agility as the average postoffice, second class, Pat has another drawback, too. He fights as if he had misinterpreted the scoring rules and was under the impression that he won a point every time he took a punch on the chin.

As for Nova, he is bound on the north, south, east and west by muscles. The muscles are mighty pretty, but they don't add to his effectiveness. The Californian is slow, mechanical, and fights as if punching from a script. The last time I saw Nova was when he was butchered by Tony Galento in Philadelphia.

Galento, not very good himself after the beating he took from Louis, beat Nova into a pulp. Nova, who had trained faithfully and entered the ring vowing by all his favorite Yogi Gods that he would prove himself a second Gene Tunney (but with a better hair cut), was strictly a second-rater that night. Even if he has improved 200 per cent since that day he still isn't a choice out of fighting beef.

Nova will beat Comiskey. He figures to, anyway. But he could beat big Pat every day and twice on holidays for a year without it being a serious indication that he was ready for Louis.

The truth is, Louis is slowly killing the heavyweight class, which isn't surprising. You can't expect it to survive a champion who is so good that he makes all of his rivals appear ridiculous. Louis eliminates contenders so quickly that a promoter doesn't have time to build a chap into even a good, honest round-heel bum before the champ whacks him out of the picture.

Look at what is already lined up for Louis this year. Red Burman on Jan. 31 and Billy Conn in June. One, Brother Burman, is just a journeyman fighter who won't last three rounds with Joe. The other, brother, is a fine boxer, a game and willing mixer, but he has trouble in getting his weight up to 175 pounds. And what does it profit a man to be a master of the manly art, and pack a heart as big as a lion's, if he has to spot Louis 25 to 30 pounds?

The 16 grapefruit on one branch of a 5-year-old tree owned by John Kebabian, Fresno, weighed twenty-one pounds.

"Northwest Mounted Police" Is Postponed One Week

Manager Otto Schmit, of the Empire Theater, received word Friday morning that owing to transportation tie-ups resulting from storms in the eastern states, the film "Northwest Mounted Police" will not arrive in Placerville in time for its scheduled showing this weekend.

"We are substituting 'Love Thy Neighbor' for the three-day engagement opening Sunday," Manager Schmit said. "This picture features Jack Benny and Fred Allen, who are both well known for their work in pictures and on the radio. "Northwest Mounted Police" will be shown Sunday, January 19th, and the Monday and Tuesday following," Manager Schmit said. "We regret the sudden change in program for 'Northwest Mounted Police' had been well advertised and is one of the truly outstanding pictures of the season."

"However, we have no alternative, and 'Northwest Mounted Police' will be shown for three days, beginning Sunday, January 19th."

SOMETHING NEW IN MYSTERY STORIES AT EMPIRE FOR FRIDAY, SATURDAY

Only youngsters would think of watching a man in a telephone booth, and copying the number he dialed by use of the binoculars used at a football game. At least such is the belief of George Seitz, veteran film director, who directed such a scene in "Gallant Sons," dramatic romance of youth, at the Empire Friday and Saturday.

"To figure that youngsters would hit on the idea was one thing—to film it so the audience would understand it, was another," says Seitz.

"We showed Jackie Cooper, Gene Reynolds and Bonita Granville in the store, turned the camera to the telephone booth, moved to a close-up of him to show the audience what the youngsters saw, then back to them as they picked up the binoculars. As it was focused on the booth, we made a close-up of the hand dialing, then back to the youngsters copying down the number as dialed. The scene lasts only a few seconds but it took several hours to film, assemble and edit."

"The binocular incident is one of the many thrilling moments in the story of the group of high school students who turn amateur detectives to trail down a criminal. Gall Patrick and Ian Hunter head the adult cast which also includes El Brendel, Edward Ashley and Minor Watson. June Preisser, William Tracy, Leo Gorcey and Tom Kelly are among the juvenile principals."

An entire high school and campus was erected at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the picture. More than a hundred youngsters play students, stage baseball practice, and aid in the activities.

Gold Trail Grange Card Party Is Cancelled

Mrs. Zelma Rosenberger, secretary of Gold Trail Grange, reports that the regular "third Saturday of the month" card party of the Grange, at Coloma Community Hall, has been cancelled for February.

The next card party of Gold Trail Grange will be in February. The cancellation was agreed upon when it was found that the date, January 18, conflicts with plans for the joint installation of officers of El Dorado-Amador Pomona and subordinate Granges, to be held at the hall of Pleasant Valley Grange on that night.

ACCUMULATED DEFICIT MAY BE PAID OFF BY END OF BIENNium

amount to all other governmental functions, its cost must be met without question. Yet the impact of this burden can be made less severe if our tax base is maintained in a healthy condition. It is recommended that the policy of paying off the deficit and conserving the state's tax resources be regarded as necessary to safeguarding national defense.

"2. New State Taxes Should Be Avoided. Because of economy in the state's spending and an upturn in normal revenues, the state is now living within its income. By continuing the policy of economy, the accumulated state deficit can be paid off within the next two years out of revenues from existing sources, thus making it unnecessary to levy any new state taxes. It is recommended, therefore, that no new taxes be levied by the 1941 legislature."

"3. Deficit Should Be Liquidated Promptly. It is probable that normal state revenues will decline as defense spending ceases. During the time that the State is receiving a bountiful supply of revenue as the result of defense activity, it is recommended that it apply as much of the excess as possible to paying off the accumulated deficit. By doing so, the state will be in a stronger financial position when industrial activity slows up and will be in a better position at that time to avoid the hazard of severe retrenchment or injurious tax increases."

"4. Economy in Non-Defense Functions Should Prevail. In order to facilitate the financing of national defense, it is recommended that the legislature and the state's spending agencies consider it their patriotic duty to effect economies in the regular functions of government. Unemployment relief appropriations should take into account the full effect of improved employment conditions due to defense prosperity and military conscription."

The departments of state government should be expected to operate as efficiently and economically as possible. Special appropriations which fall outside of the state's central program should be restricted to only the most essential demands. Economy has been practiced successfully in the immediate past as a means of avoiding the necessity for new state taxes; it now becomes important as a means of safe-guarding our resources in the interests of the present national emergency."

Forest Supervisor Edwin F. Smith was in the Mosquito section Friday morning.

A meeting of the Board of Education will be held Saturday at the school superintendent's office at the courthouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wood, who have been here for two weeks from Sathulamet, Washington, visiting relatives, return to their home on Monday of next week.

Sam Kyburz is getting along nicely with his broken arm, suffering in a fall while roller skating.

George C. Parnell returned recently from Kansas City, Missouri, where for some time past he had been under treatment at the Thornton & Wilder Clinic.
